About Me

My name is Guido Lenz. I have been working as a freelance translator since 1993.

Language is my passion. Whether you want me to translate, revise an existing text, review it before publication, or write it from scratch: Your satisfaction is my top priority.

Since 1993, customers in areas as diverse as GPS, surveying, construction, automotive, avionics, railroad engineering, IT, telecommunications, gaming, consumer electronics, office electronics, electrical/household appliances, hardware, software and large-scale industry have entrusted me with their projects and rely on my experience, speed and flexibility.

My curiosity and open-mindedness for new challenges are the ideal basis for all language services. Throughout my career, I have immersed myself in a wide variety of fields by participating in training courses, further education, and studying reference books.

As a qualified surveyor, I have worked for German and British companies both in my learned profession and as an applications engineer for GPS technology, as an executive assistant, in technical support, in sales and procurement, in product development, as a speechwriter, in preparing training materials, as a trainer and in marketing. This means that I can offer you a concentrated portion of practical experience for your texts.

If you decide to collaborate with me, you will benefit from a competent contact person for all questions concerning text creation, revision, proofreading, and translation. I respond to your wishes and deliver first-hand quality—without intermediaries and bureaucracy.

You can find out even more about me and my range of services on my website: www.amanuensis.de.

For a no-obligation quote or if you have specific questions, simply write to me at guido@amanuensis.de or call me at +49 5721-99 53 447.

I am looking forward to our cooperation.
